Super Bowl 50 Weather Situational Awareness

In collaboration with local, state and federal partners, the San Francisco Bay Area National Weather Service (NWS) Weather Forecast Office (WFO) will provide enhanced decision support services to Emergency Management partners in support of their public safety efforts around the National Football League's (NFL) Super Bowl 50 and events leading up to the NFL championship game being held at Levi's Stadium in Santa Clara, California.

We will continue to send out a morning email briefing to serve as a broad weather outlook for the greater San Francisco Bay Area through at least Feb 8. If updates are made, an afternoon email briefing will also be issued. Additional forecast briefings will be disseminated based on partner request and/or weather demands.

Weather Summary

- A flat ridge of high pressure will be persist this weekend delivering dry conditions and near to above normal temperatures. Highs warming into the upper 60s to mid 70s for Sunday and Monday. Our main concerns will be dangerous beach conditions with a swell that could cause potential for rip currents and large shore breaks this weekend.
- Minimal weather impacts expected through the weekend.
- Dangerous Beach Conditions: Heightened threat of rip currents and large shore break through Sunday. With the near record highs and many visitors to the area, there will be a concern for dangerous beach conditions.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A weak front will bring another chance for light rain this evening. High pressure is building into the area for the weekend and into early next week bringing dry weather to the area.

Medford Weather:

A long wave ridge now over the west coast will break to the east later this morning and the next long wave trough will move in, weakening as it does so. The first short wave will move onshore Friday afternoon, followed by the trough itself Friday evening. Most of the precipitation will be directed to the north of California

Reno Weather:

High pressure over California will build over the great basin through much of next week. This will keep dry conditions over the eastern sierra and western Nevada with generally light winds and valley inversions. A steady warming trend is expected with daytime temperatures well above normal by next week.

San Francisco Weather:

High pressure builds through the weekend leading to above normal temperatures Sunday and Monday when record highs may be possible. The ridge weakens slightly by Tuesday or Wednesday but dry weather stays in place.

Sacramento Weather:

A little light rain across the northwest corner of the state this evening, otherwise dry and warm conditions expected through at least the middle of next week. Daytime highs well above normal early next week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

A ridge of high pressure will bring dry weather to the central California interior for the next several days with patchy night and morning fog in the San Joaquin valley. A day to day warming trend will bring high temperatures to well above normal by Sunday. The nights will be seasonably chilly through the period.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Strong high pressure and offshore flow will dominate the weather through next week. There will be a warming trend through Monday, with well above normal to near record high temperatures Sunday through midweek. A slow cooling trend is expected Wednesday and Thursday.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Fair and unseasonably warm with gusty offshore winds through early next week. Cooler for Wednesday through Friday with weakening offshore winds.

Southeast California Weather:

High pressure will be the dominating weather feature for the region through much of next week. This will bring mostly clear skies and a warming trend to the area.
